Healing Through Artistic Expression

With a Vital Community Grant from the Community Foundation, the Elizabeth Fry Society of Peterborough (EFry) collaborated with the Art Gallery of Peterborough (AGP) to strengthen community connections for women at risk of social isolation. The project offered an art experience to those who had suffered significant, non-death related losses. The goal was to foster healing through artistic activities.

A few years ago, a client was referred to EFry for shoplifting through their Pre-Charge Diversion program. After successfully completing the program, she was eventually referred again for another shoplifting charge. This time, EFry staff noticed she was struggling with loss of abilities and was suffering from symptoms related to dementia.

Staff connected the client to the Healing Through Artistic Expression project where she was able to talk with other women about how she was struggling with not being able to do the things she once could. She engaged in the art and her family was happy that she had somewhere to go that was safe, positive and made her feel good. Her partner even bought canvasses for extra projects that she eventually gifted to her children. The client went on to attend other EFry programs and the art program offered by Kawartha Sexual Assault Centre.

Prior to her participation, the client had been increasingly isolated and had been arrested. She used the project as a catalyst to reconnect and become involved in her community through weekly activities. She now reports feeling less afraid, less isolated, and less stressed.

With a grant from the Community Foundation, money from EFry's own fundraising efforts, and support from the AGP, the Healing Through Artistic Expression project was successful on many fronts and enabled EFry to transition the project into an ongoing program.

Donor Impact Story: Carol and Ralph Ingleton

For Carol and Ralph Ingleton, it's time to give to the next generation. This was their thinking in establishing the Camp Kawartha Kids Endowment Fund at the Community Foundation.

"Camp Kawartha has strong values that support young people from a wide variety of backgrounds to be kind to the environment, each other and themselves," says Carol. "Camp levels the playing field and gives kids a chance to discover who they are - with nature, freedom and kindness as teachers."

When it comes to Camp Kawartha and kids, Ralph says, "Camp allows for direct learning in nature that engages kids with their peers. It's learning through direct experience that fosters caring about our natural world and leads to activities that demonstrate this value. Recent youth action on climate change is a good example of this."

Focused on knowing the difference between personal needs and wants, Carol and Ralph give because it feels good. According to Carol, "it's where happiness comes from." Sustainable living is also a priority for Carol and Ralph, knowing that stewarding community and the environment is critical for future generations. This is philanthropy in action - a generosity of spirit, a desire to help, and a firm belief that anyone can make a difference.

Youth In Harmony Fund

The Youth in Harmony Fund was established by Alan Wotherspoon in response to his love of music and his commitment to the learning and empowerment of youth. Grants from this Fund support vocal or instrumental music programs geared to young people. Particular attention is given to programs seeking to remove financial barriers to participation.

“The moment a child in poverty learns to play an instrument they are no longer poor; they become a child in progress.” – Maestro Jose Abreu, founder of the El Sistema music movement

Donor Impact Story: Betty and Bill Morris

For Betty and Bill Morris, their charitable giving offers a double happiness. “We get the enjoyment of seeing how the money can make a difference today but also over the long term,” says Bill.

The Morris’ have lived in the Peterborough area since 1998 and quickly started volunteering in their new community. The couple established the Betty and Bill Morris Fund in 2016. Betty has served on the Community Foundation of Greater Peterborough’s board of directors for several years and during that time, learned first-hand about the benefits of giving to a community foundation. The Foundation links people with a philanthropic nature with the priority needs of the charitable sector in the community – a win-win for all.

Another benefit, says Bill means “having our Fund is an opportunity to let our kids know what we’re doing and to get them involved if they want to know more. It’s like a family project.”

The Morris’ encourage anyone wanting to know more to contact the Community Foundation.

“It’s a conversation and you don’t have to commit to anything,” says Betty. “We’re a small, people-friendly Foundation.”
